

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The data transfer method includes, defining to divide a display image of monitor into a plurality of frames, the first group frame being defined such that 5 occurrence of an event corresponding to a mark or a marked indicator in a display region is recognizable, and the second group frame being defined such that when data corresponding to the event that occurs in connection with the first group frame, are transferred 10 from the server, thus received data are stored in the storage as the data for the second group frame, transferring the data from the server as data for the second group frame and storing the data in an applicable storage of the processing terminal, and 15 executing renewal of an image or reproduction of sound with the data stored in the storage as the data for the second group frame.